THE HOWE ENTERPRISE, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1971, VOL. VIII--No. 19

Automation, socialization, taxation, all the bane of the working man who may find himself like those in the Soviet Union supporting the government with his taxes, working for it, but no strikes allowed. All of which is reminiscent of a story I once heard about two dairy cows. They were stanchioned in the stanchions, formulated feeds before them and milking machines attached. Outside they could see a dairy truck with the message emblazoned on the side saying Pasteurized, Homogenized, and Fortified with Extra Vitamins. Said the one to the other: "Christianity is this, that the artificial insemination, it makes you feel rather inadequate somehow."

Ben Barnes speaks at noon luncheon

Jobs for young people, new industry for the smaller towns of Texas, and the high cost of Medicaid were topics of a speech last Friday noon by Lt. Governor Ben Barnes. Barnes, who is making a bid for the Governor's chair in '72, was honored guest at a noon luncheon at the Hurricane Creek Country Club.

Barnes said one of the greatest needs of the State of Texas is "a job for our young people, young adults who are graduating yearly in increasing numbers."

On Medicaid, the Lt. Governor said that the cost of the program "is eating Texas tax payers' lunch. A group medical insurance policy for a family of four costs an individual about $30 a month, while Medicaid, medical insurance for people on welfare costs the State of Texas an average of $60 per month for a family of four."

Barnes advocated a policy adopted recently by the State of New York, whereby welfare recipients were required to pick up their checks at the employment office, "and, if the office had a job opening, and the recipient refused it, no welfare check."

Since the inception of Medicaid, Barnes said, costs have increased around 20 percent, while the increase has been 130 in medical expenses.

★ ★ Lt. Governor Ben Barnes, in a speech Friday before a group of South Grayson and Collin County residents, at the Hurricane Creek Country club, described the costs of welfare and Medicaid in the state of Texas, citing a "definite tax increase next year if some of these spending programs aren't curbed."

An example of cutting welfare costs, was a method adopted by the state of New York.

Welfare in the state of New York has been a national horror story. Yet, there is evidence that the story will have a not so happy ending, at least an ending that is less than disastrous.

New York State has a new law requiring welfare recipients classified as employable to pick up their checks at the State Employment Service offices. Under the new law, they are interviewed, given a job counseling or training, or, if eligible, given a job. The results are startling. According to UPPI, "The result after one month of operation has amazed officials. Thus far, 18 percent of the welfare checks have gone unclaimed . . . Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller told a hearing on revenue sharing, that some of the individuals reluctant to pick up their checks were probably ineligible and were fearful of being found out."

Thanksgiving

By Rev. Johnny Johnson
First United Methodist Church

"O Give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good," Ps. 107. James Howe Moulton once addressed a Synod on "The Neglected Sacrament of Serivice." Another giving a little further, wrote of "The Neglected Sacrament of the Second Mile." Since nothing is taken so much for granted as God's graciousness in giving, I venture to suggest that the "Sacrament of Thanksgiving" is grossly neglected. . . . Neglected even by those of us who claim to be Christian disciples. It is but a simple Christian act, necessarily needing the support of ritual or vestments or even buildings. It is a plain and sincere, "Thank You" to God for his gracious gifts to every man, woman, and child for granted and therefore never fully appreciated. . . .

"This day let us give thanks unto the Lord, for three simple gifts which we are all prone to take for granted. They are so simple that it appears almost superfluous to express thanks, audible or inaudible.

First, thank God for life. Life: about which we know so little. The volumes written about the history of life are legion. But what of life itself? Thank God for this mysterious, wonderful, yet unfathomable thing called life.

Thank God for that because it means self, and that means you, and it means one who speaks to you. It is sufficient cause for thankfulness just to think of life in terms of self, of the body, and of senses. Thank God every day for the senses. It is this that makes thank God for eyes, ears, nose, mouth, and skin for hearing. Sweet music of strings and reeds which life up to the neck. The chatter of laughter of little children. To hear and glad sound of early morning birds and evening nightingales. The conversation of a friend. Thank God for the ability to speak and think and to remember. All these things make life. Life perhaps on its lower plane, yet life as we know it and love it. Thank God for the intellect of the dove, arising from the nest of human life, for sufficient has been said to make us stand in awe and wonder and give thanks to God for his goodness.

Then another simple thing. . . . Thank God for work. Let thy mind dwell upon the wonderful mechanism of the human body; the body which is yours. Muscle and sinews, hands and fingers, arms and legs. These, together with the senses, are factors of creation, and to some degree the motive power of physical effort. To be able to use those components of the body is indeed cause for thankfulness.

"What a sin, to say so carelessly, "I am sick of work!" Emphasis falls today on leisure and more leisure. The urge is for less working hours, which means, ultimately, less work. This appears to be seeping into our national consciousness that this is the way to leading to stagnation and bankruptcy. Thank God for the ability to work. Ask yourself if you would exchange your health and strength and your ability to work for all of the gold in Ft. Knox? Thank God for his goodness to you. . . .

Finally, a third simple thing, giving cause for thankfulness. Thank God for rest, for sleep. Thank God for a day at a time for sweet evening rest and night sleep. How delicious those moments of relaxation and rest. "When the toll of the long day is done."

What balm of Gilead could excel in efficacy the healing and refreshing balm of a night's natural and peaceful sleep? By all gifts this is God-given, it can not be compelled save by artificial and often dangerous means. . . . Perhaps you have known the agonies of sleepless nights after which you have dragged out the next weary day in a daze of what the next day is done. . . . Beyond the fact of healthy and clean living and a wholesome mind, sleep rests with God. . . . In his wisdom and goodness he touches our eyelids, and they close as gently and silently as the petals of flowers at evening-tide. He quiets the troubled mind and soothes the weary limbs. Thank God for this.

Count your thankfulness as a sacrament and do not take God's simple gifts for granted. Your thankfulness is a recognition of your dependence upon a God of goodness and mercy. Then, when you have offered your prayer for the things you can neither demand nor compel, thank God again for the life that is Christ; and for his promise of eternal life, for work done in his Name, and for the Rest which he offers.

"O Give Thanks unto the Lord, for He is good."

Mayor Resigns at called meeting; council adopts police budget for year

Lloyd W. Butts, Mayor of Howe since his election last April, Saturday tendered his resignation to City Council "effective immediately."

The resignation, in the form of a letter, was read to council by Butts, and the resignation was accepted "with regret."

Butts said the resignation was necessary due to applications he had submitted for jobs, which prohibited his holding an elected office.

The position will be filled temporarily by Mayor Preem J. W. Reed, with an election to be called "probably within 90 days" official said.

The special meeting Saturday was called specifically to consider the police department budget for the next fiscal year. Following a two-hour discussion of the proposed finances for the department, council set salary for the Police chief at $500.00 per month ($50 less than the proposal) and $2.50 per hour for extra help.

In his letter of resignation, Butts offered several suggestions for consideration of city council. The letter follows: "Gentlemen:

"By means of this letter I wish to submit my resignation from the position of Mayor of the city of Howe. Termination from this office will become effective immediately.

"I have been an honor and privilege for me to have been able to serve in this capacity for the past several months. However, I feel that my first and foremost responsibility is toward the support of my family. At present I have made application for positions of employment which would require me to relinquish my position as mayor; therefore I submit this resignation.

"It is my desire and concern that the city of Howe continue to grow in a healthy and stable manner. Because of this desire, there are certain suggestions which I wish to submit for your consideration.

1. That the accrual method of accounting be put into practice whereby funds would be set aside monthly to cover future planned projects and contingencies.
2. That planning be done now for the future replacement of outdated water and sewer lines in order that major problems might be avoided.
3. That spending be curbed immediately in order to avert a tax increase which will be needed if the present policies continue to be followed.
4. That the Council take a more active part in the actual operations of the city in order that suggestions might be made to assure that the best possible service might continue to be given to our citizens.

"As a citizen of the city of Howe, if I can be of help to you in the future, please feel free to call on me and I will give you all of the cooperation possible."

Sincerely yours,
Lloyd W. Butts

years, the number of people on the state's western river declined for two consecutive months.

Legitimate welfare recipients have nothing to fear from New York law. Prosecutors, on the other hand, could find themselves outwitted by the astute dictates of "work or starve". The lesson for other states is New York's experience, should be obvious.

We might find that one in ten of those of the government bureau which are constantly seeking ways to spend our money. It seems that a research director of a private government agency was ordered to study this. He obtained a file with a high IQ. He was ordered to train it to jump over his fingers on spoken commands. Then he reported back that the machine was not working. He moved two of the file's legs. "Jump the crooked, and the file will jump. Two more legs were removed. Again the file responded to commands. All but the first two legs were removed." (The research director commanded, but the file didn't obey. The director then wrote his lengthy report on the project, concluding that: "When a file loses all six legs it becomes deaf.")
