

Howe's That

The Howe Area Chamber of Commerce will be the location of a 'town hall' style meeting in Downtown Howe tomorrow (Tuesday) night at 7:30 pm. The meeting will be hosted by the political action committee, Bulldogs 4 Bulldogs. The event will include a presentation from the committee and a question and answer session from Howe ISD Superintendent Kevin Wilson.

Refreshments such as coffee, tea, and cookies will be available and it is a free event open to the public.

The important bond election is to be held on Nov. 7.

The chamber wants to send the reminder that they are a volunteer organization and is looking for some people willing to help with event planning such as Howalloween, mixers, the Christmas parade, Founders Day and such.

Volunteers do not necessarily have the time; they just have the heart. ~Elizabeth Andrew Calling all fall hostesses, this centerpiece is for you! Gather a few small pumpkins, maybe the pumpkin-pie variety. Simply drill five holes in the top of each pumpkin and insert skinny candles. The drill bit diameter should match the candles. Adjust the candles by pushing them deeper into the pumpkin so they sit at different heights. Add some fall foliage underneath them, light the candles and you'll have a rustic centerpiece that is perfect for the entire fall season. Or you'll have a quick house fire. Be careful.

Two Howe ladies blessed to survive weekend in Vegas

What happens in Vegas, stays in Vegas so they say. Upon boarding the airplane to come home from a birthday celebration trip that their grown sons said they were too old to survive, Sharon Carroll and Marcy Ross felt as if they were in fact blessed to have survived Las Vegas.

It was a weekend that started with great country music and ended with a horrific massacre on our great country. Stephen Paddock, the government initially told us, was a lone nut gunman who shot massive rounds from multiple weapons from a tall hotel window. Who shot from where and how is not the main concern of these two local ladies that found themselves running for their lives on a Sunday night, over 1,200 miles away from home. The fact that they were blessed to come home to see their families again is the greatest concern.

that grew up together that are now grown. Having that relationship, they also found a common interest in today's pop country music sound and decided to go see an artist named Sam Hunt. Upon finding out that he would be in Las Vegas at a festival at the time of their birthdays, it seemed the obvious selection. Within weeks of their March purchase of the tickets, the Route 91 Harvest Festival for this past weekend was sold out. Some 22,000 country music enthusiasts would see the likes of Hunt, Eric Church, and Jason Aldean. The two Howe ladies purchased a hotel room on the 22nd floor of the Mandalay Bay Hotel within walking distance of the festival.

"We just planned for a girl trip. Neither of us had been on a girl trip in a long time, so we just booked it and went," said Carroll. Not wanting to be rushed to see

'Pride of Howe' finishes second in 3A and fifth overall at contest

The Pride of Howe Marching Band competed Saturday, October 7th in the Aubrey Invitational Marching Contest where they placed fifth overall (second in 3A) out of a field of 28 bands. Class 4A schools, Krum, Anna, and Community took first, second & fourth, respectively and Van Alstyne placed third. The competition was stiff with only a small point differential separating the top five bands.

"We weren't that pleased with our prelim performance so we were excited to get another run.," said Band Director Angie Liss. "The weather was much cooler at 8:30 pm than it had been at 2:15 so that was the first bonus. There's also something special about getting that the three-day concert, the two arrived in Las Vegas on Thursday and planned to come back home Monday evening due to Jason Aldean playing late Sunday night.

"We went every night and we saw the sights and enjoyed ourselves," said Carroll.

They went to concerts each day and made their way to the same spot near the stage each day, just left of the stage with the gorgeous backdrop of their hotel in sight.

"We saw Eric Church the first night and we were pretty close to the stage. We saw Sam Hunt the next night and we were really close," said Carroll.

It was Sunday night that the rain of terror dropped from the Vegas skies and the two Howe ladies had nearly skipped out because they were not the biggest fans of Jason Aldean.

"I wanted to see Jake Owen which was between Big & Rich and Jason Aldean," said Carroll. "But we kept moving closer and closer to the stage so we decided to stay."

The two had nothing to eat or drink since lunch on Sunday and neither dared to give up their space that close to go to the stage to go to the restroom. With the last show to go, the ladies were loving the Jason Aldean performance and Ross even recorded the fourth song on her iPhone.

"He then said, 'we're going to crank it up a notch on this next song' and that's when we heard, pop pop pop pop pop. He was still singing. But by the third time it does that, after the pause, you could tell he looks up and looks concerned and that's when he leaves."

At that time the stage lights were turned off and the floodlights were turned on.

"That's when everyone said, 'get down' so we first started running and then everyone just piled down on the ground to take cover," said Carroll. "It's 22,000 people so you're just laying on people."

Ross said that they initially thought it was a drive-by and that it would be over quickly, but then it became so loud and unbearable that they thought it might be coming from overhead.

"It was so loud that it felt like my chest was thumping with each

When Howe woke up to the news on Sunday morning, immediate calls for prayers beamed across telephone lines, internet lines, satellite waves and all forms of communications.

The youngest of six Harvey kids began the roughest week of his young life with a neck brace, breathing tube, and straps to keep him down.

Meanwhile, back in his hometown, his friends began a prayer chain and the entire school system was asked to wear blue in his honor.

Prayers were beginning to be answered on Monday morning when the young athlete began to write on a dry erase board, "I love you" with his opposite hand. By late Monday, Tate was answering questions by giving thumbs up or down. Emotional moments were spent with his siblings from a hug from big brother Ty to a threat to paint his toenails from his older sister. With friends visiting him, he wrote on his dry erase board, "I love you all."

On Tuesday, the swelling peak began for his face, brain, and body. Still on the ventilator, and still very thirsty, Tate was able to respond well to oral commands.

During all of the traumatic moments for parents Brice and Keri Harvey, they relayed messages to Michelle Carney who kept friends of the family updated.

On Tuesday, the family found out that he fractured every portion of his face other than between his nose and upper lip. The initial focus was on the life-threatening fractures.

round," said Carroll. "What you've heard on TV, you can magnify that by four to five times."

With bullets landing all around them, the two laying under and over mounds of people were able to touch one another to let them know they were near.

"They lady laying on top of me says that another lady is bleeding," said Carroll. "I'm looking up and probably 10 feet away from me I saw blood on the lady.

At that point, Ross said that they made the decision to run and get away.

"We're going to get shot laying here like a sitting duck or we're going to get shot running," said Ross. "So we just took off running."

The only place to exit was in a small single-person makeshift narrow ramp. The venue was closed in by a fence, but by the time they got out of the narrow exit, someone had already knocked the fence down. The ladies, in flip flops, took off their shoes and ran to the left to an 18-wheeler where they ducked underneath the trailer.

While hunkered under the trailer, they began to wonder if the shooters were inside the arena about to make their way and kill everyone else.

"We sat there for a minute, we don't know how long, but people started yelling, 'get to the Hooter's Casino,'" said Carroll.

The two take off running across a gravel parking lot that initially looked to have no way out. They found some cars that were parked for the concert and decided to get under a large 4x4 jacked up pickup.

At that point, they called their family and Ross was able to get in touch of her husband Brian, but Carroll's husband Shawn did not answer. She was, however, able to reach her daughter Sloan. With only three percent battery remaining on her phone, she told her that she wasn't safe yet, but told her that she loved her and to tell her dad the same.

"We did all of that," said Ross. "The firing is still going on and we don't know how we're going to get out from underneath the truck and get to where we need to go."

Nearby, they witnessed a young man that people had secured on the ground and were trying to find a tourniquet. Being two cars away from the street, they witnessed herds of injured people being carried to trucks and piling in to head to the hospital.

Deciding to make a move, they ran towards an apartment complex where they came upon a SWAT team telling them to run and get away. Hiding between electrical boxes for a few moments and discussing plans to the Hooters Casino that they now could see, Carroll and Ross ran through more apartment complexes near a wall where people were screaming for them to get down.

"We finally got to the back of Hooters and the security guard said, 'come on in, it's safe here' so we just sat down on the floor because we had been running," said Carroll.

At that point, they felt safe and Ross decided to go to the restroom. Carroll began to realize that she didn't want to be away from Ross so she made her way towards the entrance to find the restroom. But at that time, the loud shooting sounded again and people thought that it was from inside Hooters. The crowd stampeded back to the doorway where Carroll was waiting for Ross. Being knocked over by the stampede, she then began to follow the crowd up a stairwell.

At the sixth floor, Carroll decided she was getting too far away from Ross so she stepped out on to a floor. Meanwhile, Ross now finds herself locked in the bathroom with approximately 50 other terrified people. Carroll, on the sixth floor with four others, finds a laundry room with a lock from the inside. The room had water, sheets, and a cart with pens in which she had someone write Ross' phone number on her arm because her phone now had one percent battery. At that time her husband Shawn tried calling her, but the people in the room didn't want anyone to talk and make noise.

"Every noise coming from the elevator or people walking, we just sat there in silence," said Carroll. "There was also a laundry shoot where we thought that if anyone tried to come (sic) shoot their way in, we could go down the laundry shoot."

The other four in the room with Carroll had battery life and were on social media which they were told that it was ISIS with multiple shooters and multiple hotels and bombs. Carroll and the others remained in the laundry closet for two hours. A man with Carroll with battery life on his phone was in communication with Ross and learned that things were clear on the floor level where she had been.

"They wouldn't leave, I had to leave by myself and went down," said Carroll. "At that time, it was still ISIS and they hadn't come on TV and said the shooter was dead or anything."

The casino shut down and became a shelter.

"People had blood all over them that had helped other people or been around other people," said Carroll. "It was just chaos."

"I saw this guy take his shirt off and tie it around another guy's leg," said Ross. "You couldn't get to the hospital. They wouldn't let you out. We were on lock-down."

Carroll and Ross stayed there all night on the floor. Without sleep, caked in dirt with black feet, they walked back to their hotel, which was the same hotel which shots were fired from intended to kill them. Upon entering the hotel, the SWAT team shows up again with guns and telling everyone to get out.

"We're thinking, 'we can't go through this again,'" said Ross.

After the false alarm, they were allowed in their room where cleaned up, ate breakfast, and got the heck out of Vegas.

"We were with each other the whole time and we were together to talk things out," said Carroll tearfully talking about her and Ross. "We didn't get to sit with each other on the plane coming back and that was the first time that either one of us was alone in the aftermath without being able to talk it out."

"I had time to pray when we were all huddled up laying together at the concert, but I thought, 'I'm dead,'" said Carroll. "It was such a constant firing. It felt like a war zone without protection."

The wristbands that they were given at the gate were purple and to remember the unbreakable bond that these two now have, they purchased matching purple bracelets with "BLESSED" inscribed on them.

Both Carroll and Ross each have separate concert events that were already scheduled for within the next two months but both admit apprehension in attending them.

Their sons told them that they were too old to survive a weekend in Vegas. But their sons had no idea what amazing instinctive life-saving skills that their moms had to display to survive this weekend Vegas trip. But if you ask them, they will tell you that they were simply, blessed.

What happens in Vegas, stays in Vegas.

The way we think defines who we are

Dr. Billy Holland

When we talk about life being filled with possibilities, we usually imagine someone stepping into our situation and helping us achieve our goals. It's easy to fall into the habit of hoping that another person will provide what we need or figure out the solutions to our problems. True, there are times when we can depend on the generosity of others but God has given each of us a sound mind and unlimited potential if we can only learn how to activate these internal resources. A common spiritual principal is to pray and wait, and there is validity in that process, but I have also learned through the years that many times God is actually waiting on us to take the initiative to press forward. When we place our trust in Him and allow Him to change our attitudes into a positive force, that which seems unattainable moves into the area of possibility. Romans 12:2 points out that we have a responsibility to be transformed by the renewing of our mind in order that we may prove and demonstrate God's perfect will. We must allow the Lord to change our mind from fear to faith as learning to believe is the basic foundation for success. If we focus on being the best we can be, good things will come but if we expect the worse, we release the powers of negativity that can diminish our joy and hope. With every situation we can respond with a positive confidence or a negative skepticism and these mental choices will always determine whether we live in spiritual peace or emotional misery.

I recently read a true story that was told by Hugh Fullerton, a famous sports writer many years ago. His account involved a man named Josh O'Reilly who managed the San Antonio baseball team that was a part of the Texas League. O'Reilly had an impressive roster of all-star players, including seven whose batting average was over three hundred. Everyone thought this super-team would easily win the championship but mysteriously they began the season losing seventeen of their first twenty games. For some reason the players could not hit the ball and as time went by, frustration boiled over into angry accusations against each other. Just when it seemed the situation could not be worse, they were beaten badly by a weak Dallas team and managed only one hit the entire game. In the clubhouse after the embarrassment, the players were confused and depressed to say the least. O'Reilly knew he had the most talented team in the league but also realized the trouble was in their mind. They were not expecting to get a hit and were not anticipating a victory because they were thinking wrong. They had slowly allowed doubt and discouragement to fill their heart with negativity and defeat. Their mental focus had turned against them and had literally created difficulties not only with their confidence, but also physically with timing, strength and coordination. And yet, they were the only ones who could change the situation.

The story continues that a certain minister named reverend Schlater was very popular in the area at the time and he was drawing large crowds as his messages were filled with positive and faith filled encouragement. O'Reilly asked each player to lend him their favorite bats, to which he loaded into a wheelbarrow and told the players to stay in the clubhouse until he returned. He was gone about an hour and returned overflowing with excitement as he told the players this preacher had blessed the bats and they now contained a spiritual power that could not be stopped. The players were astounded and jumping with enthusiasm. The next day they overwhelmed Dallas with 37 hits and 20 runs scored. They continued their way through the league schedule and convincingly won the championship. Regardless of what we believe about praying over the bats, we can agree that something very powerful happened within the minds of the players. It was not the bats that changed but with a new way of thinking, the creative power of faith blossomed. Good news! Mark 9:23 declares this spiritual principal is available to all who believe.

federal governments and from private donations, about $25 million was raised. Fifty buildings were erected in Fair Park with the Hall of State being the centerpiece.

Gulf Oil built a complete broadcast studio that allowed visitors to watch all phases of radio production. Art Linkletter got his start in broadcasting as the station's program manager. The Sons of the Pioneers entertained featuring Len Slye-later known as Roy Rogers. Native Texan Ginger Rogers made a two-day appearance and crowned the Centennial queen.

Although Centennial celebrations took place all over the state, the Dallas Expo outshone them all. Many of the buildings are still being used for the State Fair of Texas each October.

Thousands of different items were manufactured for the Texas Centennial including postcards, salt and pepper shakers, ashtrays, cheap jewelry, Czech plates illustrating Texas themes, a replica of a Colt .45 six-shooter, a parasol, dishes and bowls adorned with bluebonnets, sheet music of "Come on Down to Texas," walking sticks, sunbonnets, license plate ornaments, doorstops, Swanky Swigs, playing cards, hats, miniature souvenir buildings, calendars, souvenir spoons, and pottery items to name just a few. A. Harris contracted with Imperial Glass Company to produce a clear glass platter and a sugar and creamer set for the Centennial year to be distributed through their store. All of the above are sought after by collectors.

Your pincushion shoe, in the chipped condition it is in, should sell for about $10, double if it were perfect.

Pricing these items is not easy because they are not popular enough to warrant inclusion in price guides. I only found two references in books to Texas Centennial items.

You may find more information in a newsletter called Texas Centennial Collector produced in Longview. And of course, the Internet is an invaluable resource.

Usually dealers will price Texas Centennial items similar to how other world's fair and exposition items are priced. Perhaps that is a fair rule of thumb. Of course, Texas Centennial items sell for higher prices in Texas.

Dr. Georgia Caraway, former director of the Denton County Museums for 14 years, and her friends opened the Howe Mercantile at 107 East Haning. Store hours are Thursday through Saturday noon until 8 p.m. She has written five Denton history books. She hopes her next book will be the history of Howe. If anyone has photos that she can copy, please bring them to Howe Mercantile.

Q. The recent State Fair of Texas reminded me of this little shoe from the fair held in Dallas celebrating Texas's Centennial. It is a souvenir pin cushion. There is a little chip above the symbol. What can you tell me about it and other Texas Centennial items? Are they popular and is there any value to collecting them?

A. The Texas Centennial Exposition ran for 178 days, from June 6 to November 20, 1936. The celebration marked the 100-year anniversary of Texas's independence from Mexico. Dallas campaigned to hold the celebration there and the city's offer to put up $10 million was accepted. With some money from the state and

Howe Enterprise to be among heavy hitters in Hugh Aynsworth Awards banquet

Seventeen news organizations and their reporters, photographers, and editors were named today as finalists in the first Hugh Aynsworth Excellence in Journalism awards sponsored by the Press Club of Dallas.

The awards, which honor Texas journalists' work completed in 2016, will be presented at a Nov. 30 dinner at the Sixth Floor Museum in Dallas. The event, which is open to the public, is scheduled to be hosted by WFAA TV sports anchor Dale Hansen. The awards are named for veteran reporter and long-time press club member Hugh Aynsworth, four times a Pulitzer Prize finalist.

The 17 finalists represent news reporting from throughout Texas in seven news organization categories: daily newspapers, weekly newspapers, magazines, television, radio, digital news sites and photography/video. Winners and finalists will be announced for work done in investigative reporting, feature reporting, spot news photography and feature photography.

"These finalists represent some of the best work in journalism throughout the state of Texas in 2016," said press club president Cary Broussard. "It confirms that, despite financial challenges and intensified scrutiny from the public, journalism is an essential and necessary part of a free society."

The finalists run the gamut from large newspapers and television stations such as the Austin American Statesman and the Dallas Morning News and KXAS TV in Dallas and KSAT TV in San Antonio to weekly newspapers like Howe Enterprise and Brownsville Progress Times.

The 17 nominees are The Austin American Statesman, FOX4 KDFW, NBC4/KXAS, KSAT 12 San Antonio, KERA - Dallas, KERA/KUHF, The Advocate Media Magazine, Fort Worth Magazine, The Arlington Voice, Brownsville Progress Times, Howe Enterprise, KSTX San Antonio Public Radio, Spot News, Jay Janner, Austin American Statesman.

Texas History Minute

Dr. Ken Bridges

Dr. Bridges is a Texas native, writer, and history professor. He can be reached at drkenbridges@gmail.com.

Price Daniel, Sr., had a distinguished career serving Texas and the nation. By 1952, he had already served as an army officer, Texas House Speaker, and attorney general. At the age of 42 in 1952, his political career was only beginning with his election to the U. S. Senate.

With his inauguration in January 1953, he jumped into his new position. He pushed through legislation giving coastal states the mineral rights to coastal waters, legislation he made a priority in his 1952 election. While in the Senate, he also pushed through strict new laws regarding illicit drug use. In 1956, he decided to return to Texas and run for governor. It was a crowded field and a close contest, with Daniel challenged by liberal and conservative candidates. Daniel won the initial Democratic Primary and narrowly defeated former Judge Ralph Yarborough in the Democratic runoff. He resigned his Senate seat and began his tenure as governor in January 1957.

Daniel's years as governor were years of looking ahead. He worked to modernize the state in many ways. He approved new highway construction. He pushed ethics reforms for state officials and lobbyists, and with Lyndon Johnson, helped bring NASA's space center to Houston. History was one of his great passions, and he spearheaded an effort to create the State Library and Archives Building in Austin to house the state's important records and documents, dedicated in 1962. Looking at the growth of cities and the demands of farmers and ranchers, Daniel also moved to create more water projects to increase the state's supply. By the time he left office, dozens of reservoir projects were already planned.

In spite of the state's oil wealth, Texas faced serious money problems in Daniel's third term. In 1961, the legislature proposed a 2% sales tax to make up for the funding shortfalls. Daniel had fought the sales tax in his years in the legislature, but he realized that the state needed new sources of revenue to meet the demands of a modern state. The legislature passed the tax, and Daniel allowed it to become law without his signature. The sales tax was very unpopular. In 1962, Daniel lost the Democratic Primary in his bid for a fourth term to Secretary of the Navy John Connally, who went on to become governor.

In 1967, Lyndon Johnson, now president, still looked to Daniel for his expertise. He was named to a position on the National Security Council as head the Office of Emergency Preparedness. Johnson also named Daniel as a liaison between the White House and the nation's governors.

Daniel's family became deeply involved in politics as well. His younger brother, William, served three terms in the state legislature and later served as territorial governor of Guam from 1961 to 1963. His eldest son, Price Daniel, Jr., deeply admired his father. By the time he was 12 in the 1950s, he was making speeches and campaigning for his father. In 1968, he was elected to the same legislative seat his father held and eventually became Speaker of the House by 1976, just as his father had years before.

In 1971, Gov. Preston Smith named the former governor and Senator to an unexpired position on the Texas Supreme Court. With this, Daniel had now served in all three branches of state government. He was elected to a full term on the court in 1972 and re-elected in 1974. He decided not to seek re-election in 1978.

When he retired at the end of his term in January 1979, he capped a remarkable four decades of elected service. He worked as a private attorney afterward, providing free service to the Alabama-Coushatta tribe. He hoped to enjoy a quiet, peaceful retirement at his ranch in his native Liberty County. But it was not to be.

In 1981, Price Daniel, Jr. -- respected citizen, attorney, and father of three -- was shot and killed by his wife in a bizarre incident. The scandal shocked the entire state. And the entire Daniel Family was left in deep mourning. The elder Daniel was deeply hurt by the loss, for the bond between a father and his son is unbreakable. His health declined in the years afterward. Price Daniel, Sr., died on his ranch of a stroke in 1988 at the age of 78.

Daniel was widely honored for his service. Baylor University named its public service award after the former governor and senator. A prison unit in Snyder is named after him. The Price Daniel State Office Building is located near the State Capitol in Austin. His home is now a museum.

Howe ISD holds retirement party held for Jesse Stonebarger

Jesse Stonebarger congratulated by Kevin Wilson for 17 years.

Jesse Stonebarger turns 81-years-old today and last Wednesday was given a retirement party from Howe ISD where he has been employed since 2000.

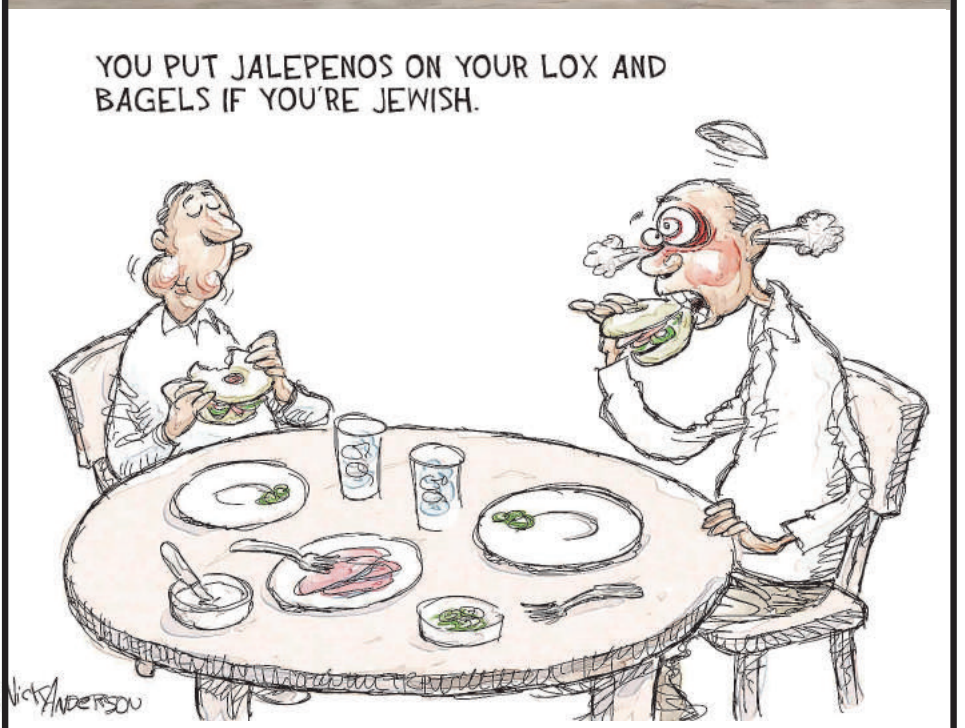

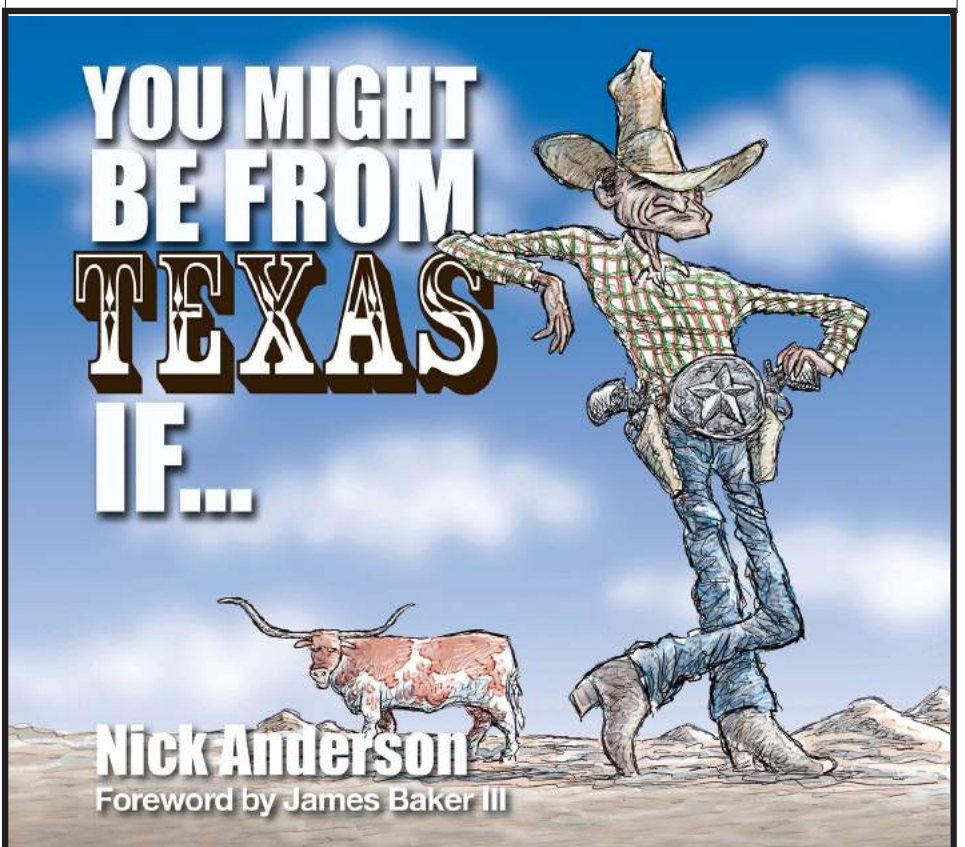

It is not the first job in which Stonebarger has retired from and knowing him, it may not be his last. He started with the Burlington Cotton Mill for 26 years until it closed its doors.

He then went to McKinney and worked for the ice cream plant, Specialty Foods back when McKinney wasn't the forearm of Dallas. He was there for three years before going to Oscar Mayer in Sherman. He worked there for nine years before they closed their doors also.

At that point, he was hired by Howe ISD in maintenance and had a great career that lasted 17 years.

He is married to Mary and they have grandchildren in the ISD - Elijah, Noah, and Jacob Campbell.

Middle school football recap

Austin Haley (15) leads the seventh grade out.
Jennifer Daniels/Howe Enterprise.

Both the seventh and eighth grade teams traveled to Bells for a bye-week matchup. Tate Harvey was heavy on everyone's mind. Both teams wore blue tape around their wrist in honor of Harvey. Bells was also very supportive and led a prayer in the middle of their field with all the teams before the eighth grade game.

Howe's seventh grade faced their toughest matchup yet. The team trailed 14-0 at half but came out a different team in the second half. Austin Haley hooked up with Ryan Hough for a touchdown on a critical fourth and goal that put the score at 14-6. With 40 seconds left in the 4th quarter, Haley, donning Tate Harvey's jersey number 15 jersey, ran it in on a quarterback sneak on fourth and goal. Carson Daniels took the toss on the 2-point conversion try but came up short. Bells took the win, 14-12.

The Howe eighth grade faced some early special team blunders once again and found themselves trailing 20-0 at the end of the first quarter. Kelyan Jaresh scored the team's first touchdown of the season on a physical run. The team played much better in the second half, holding The Panthers to only six points. Final score, Bells 42 - Howe 6.

Fifth and sixth grade Dogs enter playoffs undefeated

Howe sixth grader Jacob "Clyde" Campbell runs for one of his two rushing touchdowns on Saturday.
Jennifer Daniels/Howe Enterprise.

The fifth and sixth grade Howe Bulldogs continued their dominance on Saturday with a 34-6 win over the Bells Panthers. Howe now enters the playoffs with a 7-0 record and have outscored their opponents 204-14.

Howe's first score was set up by a Gage Troxtell run that appeared to be a 45-yard touchdown, however the tiniest blade of fake turf grabbed his whole body and took him down. Jacob Campbell would finish off the scoring drive with a 27-yard pass to Cooper Jones. Howe led 6-0 early.

A Braden Ulmer 30-yard run set up a 10-yard Troxtell touchdown and Howe led, 12-0. The 'Dogs appeared to have an 18-0 lead going to the half, but a fumble ended the drive.

Howe scored quickly in the third quarter when Campbell hit Rowdy Kuykendall on a 36-yard pass to extend the Howe lead.

The two-point conversion from Campbell to Kuykendall extended the lead to 20-0.

Howe recovered an onside kick and Campbell scampered 50 yards on fourth and long for the score. Howe led 28-0 after a Campbell to Kuykendall PAT.

Howe's final score came on another fourth and long situation with Campbell going the distance. That gave Howe their final tally of 34 points.

Bells was able to punch it in the endzone on the final play of the game.

Jordan Blaylock quarterbacked most of the offense in the second half with Ashton Trevino and Noah Riley getting carries.

Howe will play Whitewright in the first round of the playoffs on Saturday in Blue Ridge at 10:30 am.

Howe's third and fourth grade lose to Trenton in heartbreaker, 7-6

The Howe third and fourth grade Bulldogs played Trenton at S&S. Garrett Rodgers caused a fumble, recovered by Devon Wallace to end Trenton's first possession. Rodgers then took it 52 yards to the endzone for a 6-0 Howe lead.

The defenses traded four-and-out possessions for the entire third quarter. Howe had an opportunity to close the game with a Rodgers 80-yard interception for a touchdown, however it was called back on a hold.

The Dogs held Trenton scoreless with two different goal line stands of first and goal. But with 5.1 seconds remaining, Trenton was finally able to get across the goal line to tie the game at 6-6. The Tigers successfully pushed across the point-after-attempt to win the game, 7-6.

The Bulldogs will open the playoffs next Saturday versus Whitewright at Whitewright at 10:30 am.

Howe lost to Whitewright, 7-6 in the second game of the year.

The Howe first and second grade Bulldogs lost a heartbreaker, 6-0 in overtime to Whitewright on Saturday afternoon. The Bulldogs will open the playoffs Saturday against Blue Ridge at Bells at 10:30 am. Howe beat Blue Ridge, 27-12 earlier in the season.

Tate Harvey

Back in Howe, youth football teams that Tate played for a year prior were praying before practices and preparing a poster for him that reminded him of the team motto, "NEVER QUIT."

On Thursday, Howe and Bells gathered for prayer before their game and both teams wore blue wristbands during the game. Later that night, one of his former youth football coaches and former teammates delivered a poster made by the fifth and sixth-grade cheer coach Katrina Vest. The poster was signed by each player on the fifth and sixth-grade Bulldogs team.

On Friday, the first round of specialist consulted the neurological team of doctors and increased the amount of spinal fluid that was draining through his facial fractures. He maintained his lumbar drain.

As of Saturday, Harvey was retaining water but dumping sodium. His urine had a high concentration of sodium. They were still draining his Cerebral Spinal Fluid every hour. As to be expected, he was also contending with frequent headaches. He will continue his stay in ICU.

On Saturday morning at the youth football games in Bells, both Howe and Bells fifth and sixth-grade cheerleaders dedicated

STATE—

UNDER THE Dome at Austin

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent

Austin—(UP)—All the candidates for governor in the recent state primary declared for a revision of the present 7,000-pound weight limit for motor trucks, and most of the candidates for the state legislature are pledged to its repeal.

There are 21 different organizations in the state that are interested in the truck load question. Failure to change the load limit in the last legislature was due, partly at least, to differing views about what the change should be. Efforts are being made to present a united front at the January session of the legislature.

There is wide variance among the advocates of a truck load change. Some have favored flat top weight, differing on amount. Some believed the weight should be a varying one depending upon the type of vehicle carrying it.

Unless the advocates of a change unite in a measure, there will always be the prospect that the railroad interests by dividing the forces for truck load raises can block any law on it.

Former Sen. Carl Hardin, representing the private truck owners organization, said he believed the various truck associations are united in support of a bill fixing weight limitations mathematically by a formula based on wheel and axle factors.

The proposed bill is similar to House Bill 13 of the last session of the legislature. H. B. 13 was sponsored by Rep. Homer Leonard of McAllen. Leonard has been re-elected to the house and is expected to be named speaker this time.

Both Rep. Joe Monkhouse of Uvalde, who was chairman of the House Committee on Highways and Motor Traffic, and Rep. Helmut Scheuenemann of Kenedy, who was chairman of the House Committee on Common Carriers, are retiring from the legislature. Who will head the two committees will not be known until the speakership is settled definitely. Joe C. Carrington, a new member from Austin, head of a motor carriers insurance company, may get one of the chairmanships.

Sen. Houghton Brownlee, also of Austin, who headed the Senate Committee on Highways and Motor Traffic, will be re-appointed to both the chairmanship of that committee and to membership on the House General Investigating Committee, it is expected. The senate has no common-carriers' committee.

In the senate it is expected that Sen. Rogers Kelly of Edinburg will take the lead in the fight for a new truck load law. He has placed it first on the list of "must" measures.

Presuming that Leonard will be speaker it will be necessary for some other members to carry on the drive in the house.

Hardin said that 23 states already have adopted the wheel and axle bill that is being supported by the truck organizations.

"We are not fighting the railroads," Hardin said. "We are trying to do something that will help business, industry and everybody. The private carriers will launch a new fight for their own regulatory bill. Under a court decision, the merchant who hauls his goods, adding the cost of damage to the price of goods he sells to his customers, charge some carrying rate as common carriers."

The private carriers have gotten a legislative resolution asking that the law not be enforced as ordered by the courts, but so far failed to get their private bill enacted. Once it was passed by house and senate but it was vetoed by Gov. James V. Allred. He thought there were defects in the measure.

Another attempt is expected to be made in the 47th legislature to repeal the oil and gas regulation committee of the Texas Railroad Commission.

W. B. Culbertson, former head of the Commission's Gas and Utility

Tribute Paid to Bub Harrell

The following article is reprinted from the Amarillo Daily News of Sept. 17:

"Uncle Bub" is dead.

To many hundreds of Northwest Texas cattlemen that revelation will bring sorrow and a fleeting mental glimpse back into those days when the Panhandle was virtually unmarked by human habitation and the grass was ever long and green.

"Uncle Bub" is a term of affection and respect. To the old timer it means more than the formal David Arch Harrell—for that was his christened name.

Mr. Harrell died yesterday afternoon at his home in Lark, five years to the day after his wife died in Claude. She's buried in the Claude cemetery.

It was 41 years ago that "Uncle Bub" came to the Panhandle from his home in Grayson County. He and Lee Bivins had been reared together, and they came out to this country together.

40 Sections of Land "Uncle Bub" settled north of Claude, on the site of what now is known as Lark. Lee Bivins settled on land to the south of Claude.

Forty sections of land were in the Harrell holdings and while he is believed to have sold some of this land off friends of long-standing said last night they believed the 40 sections remained virtually undiminished.

One of the most widely-known of the Panhandle's independent cattle operators, Mr. Harrell at one time ran several thousand head of cattle on his holdings, known as the Harrell Ranch.

He also was one of the largest growers in the Panhandle, planting some eight to 10 sections of grain.

Ailing in recent years, the 78-year-old Plainsman last visited Amarillo to attend the funeral of Julian Bivins a few months ago.

Rites May Be Wednesday Retiring, despite the fact that he "bored with a big augur" in Panhandle civic and ranch affairs, Mr. Harrell for many years had contributed lavishly to worthy charitable and unfortunate cases. Many widows and orphaned children in Amarillo have felt the helping hand of this man, who did good not for publicity but for the merit he found in the act itself.

Bulldogs Win Opener From Tioga 24-0 The Howe Bulldogs won the conference opener here Friday afternoon by handing the Tioga eleven a 24 to 0 trouncing.

M. H. Jeter led his team-mates with two touchdowns, Jack Coffey and Bill Patterson, made one each. Howe made 19 first downs to Tioga's two and completed two out of three passes.

The Bulldogs had played only one other game this season, winning it from Sherman B.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Wheeler, Mrs. Ellen Green, Mrs. J. C. Galimore, Mrs. Will M. McCoy and Mrs. Barham of near Sherman, visited and Mrs. Woodrow Adecock at Valley View Sunday afternoon.

HISTORICAL SKETCH OF THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH ANNA, TEXAS

By REV. BARNARD FRANKLIN Not many churches in Texas now existing, can boast a longer history than the First Baptist Church of Anna. Few churches have records and minutes covering a longer period of time. The minutes of the church's original constitution have been lost in the last twenty years, but members now living have read them repeatedly before they were lost. A testimony to the conservative character of the membership is the fact that for a period of ninety years, only seven clerks have served the church—one, the late Bro. J. B. Lair, serving in that capacity for 32 years.

Primitive Conditions A word picture of conditions existing in North Texas ninety five years ago is preserved in a testimony from the pen of a pioneer Baptist preacher, Elder John Freeman, excerpts of which are given here:

"I crossed the Red River into Texas north of Bonham about the first of November, 1845. . . I was just then entering my twenty-fifth year, full of life and full of

Howe Corn Show Is Success

The Corn and Cotton Show held here last Saturday was pronounced a success by visitors and sponsors and discussion is being heard regarding the possibility of making the show an annual affair and running for two or more days. Products were entered in the show. More than 30 exhibits of farm which was considered a fair representation of the community, considering the fact that the event was planned and staged in but little more than three weeks.

Judging of the exhibits was done Saturday morning, Dalton H. Hooten of the Greenville experiment station, judging the cotton; T. C. Richardson, associate editor of the Farm and Ranch, judged the corn, and John Bean, Sherman high school vocational agriculture teacher, judged the small grains.

The afternoon program consisted of music by the Aunt Betty's Texans and talks by Dr. Hooten, who discussed the root rot problem; Mr. Richardson, who spoke on the value of community shows and the Breeder-Feeder program; V. O. Teddlie, Grayson county farm agent and Doyle Williams, Denison vocational agriculture teacher.

A corn shucking bee was held during the afternoon and was won by Ector Sollis of the Farmington community, who shucked a bushel in four and one-quarter minutes. Bill Mayo was second, Tiny Hopper third, S. F. Everett fourth, Tommie Ferguson fifth, Reece Bowen sixth, Joe Offel seventh, A. T. Davenport eighth, J. D. Bogle ninth and A. M. Ferguson tenth.

The Harvest Season Frolics were held at the high school gymnasium Saturday night at which time the queens of the show were recognized and coronation ceremonies held. D. C. McComas was Master of Ceremonies for the program which was arranged by Mrs. S. W. Yeury and Miss Mamie Roberts. A. M. Ferguson gave the address of welcome. Attorney General Gerald C. Mann threw a bombshell Friday when he ruled that state officials could not hold their positions when they enter military service. A number of high state government officials are members of the national guard and will be called into training while others are subject to conscription. These men had made plans to hold their jobs while receiving training. The ruling will give Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel a number of appointees and will require many special elections throughout the state, if held valid by the courts. Some of the officials involved have announced intentions of filing a test suit.

The Supreme Court of Texas ruled Wednesday that filling stations selling merchandise other than gasoline and oil were subject to the state chain store tax.

Fort Worth and Dallas have set themselves apart from other cities of the nation when they refused this week to cooperate with the federal government in the building of a huge airport about midway between the two cities. The government had offered more than a million dollars to help pay for the work. The cities did not turn down the offer because of a distaste for public money, however. Jealousy between the rival cities was responsible.

Irvin S. Cobb, noted author and humorist, has been speaking in Texas in the interest of Wendell L. Willkie, republican nominee for president. Cobb challenged Myron Blalock to debate the issues with him at a Dallas rally this week. Blalock refused and then Cobb was challenged to debate by Tom Martin, a Johnson City barber. It was then Cobb's turn to refuse. "I'm scared of a barebr shop in a small town," Cobb said.

The government last Thursday ordered 59 employees of the Bata Shoe Company to return to Czechoslovakia on the ground that the company had misrepresented the kind of work they were brought into this country to perform. The Bata company has recently completed a $2,000,000 factory in Maryland and had been granted permission to bring in the employees from its Czech-Slovakian plant to be used as instructors.

The government ordered a complete embargo on the shipment of all scrap iron and steel to Japan

ANN CAROLYN HOWARD

ANN Carolyn Howard is four years old. To look at her one would judge her age to be about two, but to hear her talk and sing, and say "speeches" one would think her quite grown-up. She has a quaint, old-fashioned look and manner. She is very slow and deliberate, and self-assured. She knows how to time her speech and her smiles to impress her audience. She has personality plus. If she were in Hollywood, she would make an added attraction to "Our Gang" comedy.

Ann Carolyn was born in Sherman, June 20, 1936. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Howard Jr. The Howards have been residents of Howe for two years.

She has mastered the alphabet, has memorized many poems and songs, one of which contains stanzas. She sings for radio programs, church and social affairs. She is learning to cook and make her first cake this week.

She has decided ideas about her dress. She prefers her hair in two little braids, though she asks to go to the beauty shop for special hair-do's on special occasions. She selects what she wants to wear each day. At the table she sets the example for table manners, and slow eating. Ann Carolyn is a very unusual little girl, so quaint, so old-fashioned, so talented.

HOWE'S THAT ?

Suppose you've seen that insurance commercial on the boob tube about something or other that knocked something else or other onto the table that dumped the radio that scared the dog that knocked the piano through the side of the house.

And, just like the commercial, we don't remember all the details, but Butch Thornhill probably does.

If you've noticed, he's wearing a cast on a broken arm — And all because he started to turn off the stereo set.

Butch reached for the switch, or plug, or something or other, stumbled over a chair toward a window, hung a foot on the window sill and fell outside the house, breaking an arm.

Knew Joe Tolbert worked for the Department of Housing and Urban Development — but we didn't know that word "Urban" covered so much territory.

Joe gave Nita one of his business cards with his office telephone number thereon.

Tuesday, she had occasion to call Joe on some kind of business.

What with all this long distance dialing bit, she proceeded to dial the prefix, area code, etc., etc.

Finally someone answered the call and asked whom she was calling.

"Joe Tolbert."

"Who?"

"Joe Tolbert, please." Nita repeated.

"I'm sorry, you must have the wrong residence. (All this side of the conversation was in broken English). We don't have any Joe Tolbert here."

"With whom am I speaking?" Nita inquired.

She doesn't remember the answer, insofar as the name is concerned, but the family she had contacted was in the Bahama Islands.

Nita said she thought something was funny when the telephone sounded like a horn instead of the familiar ring.

If the sound stopped, everything will probably work out.

Ag Department Here Selected For Student Teaching

The Vocational Agriculture department here has been selected as a student teaching center by East Texas State University, according to Supt. Charles R. Thompson.

During the semester, Joe R. Russell, an Agricultural Education major at East Texas, has spent the week of September 25-29 in the Voc-Ag. Department. He will again be in the department from November 20 to January 19.

Student teaching is a part of the experiences provided students preparing to become teachers of vocational agriculture and professional ag workers.

Only high school vocational agriculture departments are selected that are considered to be outstanding, according to Dr. A. C. Hughes, head of the Department of Agriculture at East Texas.

"We consider the Howe Voc. Ag. Department, under the direction of Billy Harrell, to be among the top departments in Texas," Dr. Hughes added.

"I feel fortunate to have the opportunity to work in Howe's Ag. Department," Russell said. "Such experience will greatly enhance by university work and will make me a better trained professional worker in agriculture."

Cub Scout Parent Rally October 16

A Cub Scout Parents' Rally has been scheduled for 7:30 p. m., Monday, October 16. Don Burrows, District Scout Executive of Sherman, announced this week.

Cub Scouting is a program of the Boys Scouts of America for youngsters eight, nine and ten years of age, and their families, Burrows said. The entire family participates in the activities, which are slanted toward the home and neighborhood and are built around the needs and interests of the boy.

Since Cub Scouting requires the participation and cooperation of parents, it is necessary that parents learn how to help their sons in the program.

Attendance at the rally is vital to parents who wish their sons to be cubs.

Burrows will be present to answer questions and to assist in the organization.

THE HOWE ENTERPRISE, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1972--VOLUME IX--No. 13

 HOWE'S THAT *****

It's all over--at least for the next one hundred years. Howe's celebration of its one hundredth birthday surprised even those who worked hours and hours planning the event. Old timers said crowds were "the largest I ever seen in Howe." Participation was beyond expectations in about every event, from the opening parade to the closing program, the womanless wedding.

There were amusing sidelights to the celebration, as well as serious sides to the celebration. And it took a lot of people working on the celebration, to make the thing go over. Without all the cooperation from everyone, it would have been a flop.

People were here during the week from several states, and from almost every part of Texas.

Several weeks back, I wrote President Richard Nixon, and Congressman Ray Roberts, inviting them to the celebration even though I knew they probably couldn't attend.

Received a prompt reply from Congressman Roberts, wishing Howe the best (letter was published in the Enterprise and an immediate response from one of the President's assistants, informing us that the president would correspond at a later date (out campaigning, no doubt). And sure enough, I did, during the week of the celebration. And Richard even requested a copy of the paper, if the letter was used. So, we complied.

Can see next week's headlines now--"Nixon spends week end reading The Howe Enterprise."

Some of the centennial content were serious business.

Take the domo tournament for instance. Thirty-two partners squared off at the beginning of the match, around 7 o'clock Tuesday night. Gradually players were eliminated by defeat, and, along about 10 o'clock, the tournament really got interesting, when only about four games remained. And then, about 11, it was the semi-finals. In a best two out of three series, to determine first and second place, the foursome battled for an hour and a half, with one pair beating the other by fifty in the first game, and the other pair beating the first game winner by an identical score in the second game, and then in the final, both lacked 30 points near the end of the thing. That's close.

And, back to those wrestling matches on opening day of the celebration.

It was more fun watching the spectators than it was the wrestlers themselves. Found out there are some serious-minded individuals attending such events. And they let it be known when the villain was attempting dirty tactics.

And the sponsors, the volunteer fire department, netted around $600 for their efforts, too.

And, that womanless wedding.

If you missed Marshall Robertson (the groom) and Coy Pool (as the bride) you missed a good show. The family of the couple wasn't bad either. Adding it all together, the Centennial Celebration was a big success.

Financial report on the celebration, with proceeds to go toward the City Park, will be published as soon as all receipts are in, and bills tabulated.

Homecoming game spoiled by Allen, Centennial Celebration Big Success

28-6; Wolfe City here Friday night

Allen's Eagles spoiled the Howe Homecoming last Friday night, defeating the Bulldogs, 28-6. It was their second loss for the 'dogs in four starts, with wins posed over Anna and Sanger, both by a one-point margin. Other loss was to Princeton.

Howe will host Wolfe City this Friday night, with game time at 8:00 p. m. District play will begin the following week, with the Bulldogs meeting the as yet undefeated Tiggers of Whitewright, there. Conference games will begin at 7:30 p. m.

Howe contained the visiting Eagles most of the first half, until the birds unleashed a quick-pitch to a fast halfback, scoring their initial TD from 55 yards away in seven plays, utilizing the change-up action. Prior to the scoring drive, the Eagles had been held to one first down.

Howe took the opening kick and hit for four first downs, before being forced to punt from the Allen 44. Neither team threatened after that until the Visitors came forth with the game breaking quick-pitch.

Howe recovered a punt fumbled by Allen shortly before halftime, and moved 40 yards for six points, leaving only seven seconds in the period. The scoring play was an aerial, QB Vincent Hash to Gene Bridges. Attempt to knot the score via the aerial route was intercepted in the end zone.

Allen covered 55 yards to the goal line following the opening kick of the second half, only to fumble away the score in the end zone. Howe returned the favor two plays later, however, with the Eagles scoring from the Howe 17 on the first play. Two point conversion brought the score to 16-6.

The visitors hit for two more TD's in the fourth period to salt away the victory, one on a seven yard run, and the final on a 66 yard gallop on the quick pitch around end.

Jackie Monk, fleet half-back for the Bulldogs, missed action in the Allen game due to an injury suffered the previous week in the Sanger contest. Monk is expected to return to action this week. Doctors diagnosed a ruptured blood vessel in his thigh.

Howe B Team, seventh and eight graders are scheduled to play tonight, (Thursday) at Wolfe City. B team tied Allen last Thursday, 0-0.

Howe's that...

TRAITS OF SUCCESSFUL FAMILIES - Handling the ups and downs of everyday living seems to be easier for some families than others, according to family life education specialists with Texas A&M. What makes one family more capable or successful than others?

Research studies in the past 10 years have identified several common traits among many successful families:

1. Members are united; they are all working toward the same goals. They value their family ties and spend time working and playing together, getting to know each other better.

2. There is a respect for individual differences, autonomy, separateness, and independence. Individuals are encouraged to develop personal competencies and skills through independent pursuits, rather than the family doing everything together and stifling creativity. In united families, there is a feeling of both togetherness and separateness.

3. Successful families also have definite, clear values that are known to their children. These values become part of the family's way of life as they are examined, discussed, practiced, and alternated when necessary. A basic set of common values provides directions for day-to-day decisions confronting family members.

4. Parents assume the role of teacher and model and take their responsibilities seriously. Most of these parents have high self-esteem and tend to build self-respect and self-confidence in their children. These parents also trust their children and expect to be as important to their children as their children are to them.

5. Facing problems realistically and openly is another trait of successful families. They exhibit optimism and are flexible in looking for and trying solutions to problems. They seem to be the most capable of adapting to crisis situations.

6. Strong, successful families also tend to have a commitment to the community and share their strengths with others. And most of all, they have fun and laugh together.

Conclusions from the studies show that successful family life does not come easily. Strong families have been found to work constantly to strengthen their family ties. Their formula for success seems to be to work hard and play hard - together.

RAILROAD CROSSINGS ARE DANGEROUS - In a recent letter to the editor in this paper, a young man complained about the warning bells and lights on the railroad crossing in Howe. These warning signals are often on for hours and days when no train is coming. There is a danger, as was stated in the letter, of persons ignoring the warning as "crying wolf" when there is no "wolf."

There are 219,000 railroad grade crossings in the United States. In an average year 1,000 people are killed in vehicle-train crashes. Another 4,600 are hurt seriously enough to need medical attention.

Why do these accidents occur? Many drivers pay little or no attention to the dangers. They are crossing the tracks day after day when no train is coming. They become familiar with the area and are concentrating on getting home or to work or to school or play. A moment of carelessness can result in a fatal accident.

By the way, a freight train with 150 cars travelling at 30 miles per hour requires 1/4 mile to stop. You can stop a whole lot quicker. Play it safe next time you come to a railroad crossing. Whether the lights and signals are going or not, look for trains.

City of Howe Report

A 400 foot section of Beatrix Street, east of the high school, has been paved at a cost of $10,000. According to City Administrator Joe Fenton the street is 36 feet wide on the average, double the width of most of Howe's streets.

Fenton said the city street department spent two days preparing the street by sweeping away loose material and patching small holes. Fowler Construction Co. of McKinney did the paving, putting down 250 tons of hot mix, hot lay asphalt. The cost of the contract was $5,000.

The city bought the asphalt for $5,000 from Gohman Asphalt Plant of Frisco. Fenton said the street is representative of what the city plans to do as the funds are available. He added that by using the city street crew to prepare the street, $30 a ton was saved. Fowler charged $20 a ton to put down the asphalt, but if the contractor had had to prepare the street it would have cost $30 a ton to lay it down, in addition to the $20 per ton charge for materials.

Fenton and City Engineer John Wortham attended a meeting Friday, Oct. 1, in Austin at 9 a.m. at the Texas Dept. of Water Resources.

The city is entering Step 2 of the Sewer Grant - the detailed plans and specifications. A stack of booklets and guidelines were given the city to aid them in filling out several pages of application and forms that are required in this step.

The plans and specifications will be worked on by Fenton and Wortham to be sent in by the Dec. 15 deadline. Fenton said the grant should be received early in 1983 for the Step 3 - construction.

Funding for the sewer grant is 75% from the federal government and 25% from local funds.

Fenton also noted that last week the street department did some street patching, particularly on Timbercreek. The street crew also did some mowing and cleaning up of city property in town.

City Councilman Jack Floodas and Municipal Judge Gary Engel attended a workshop on Municipal Law at TRPC Thursday, Sept. 30. Tom Akins, attorney, presented the program.

On Oct. 7 John Clary of the Texas Dept. of Community Affairs and Bill Vick of the Regional Planning Commission will conduct a workshop on fiscal management.

No School Monday

Howe Schools will be closed Monday, Oct. 11, while teachers attend inservice meeting. This is a change on the school calendar which originally set the day for inservice for Friday, Oct. 8.

All schools will be open as usual on Friday, Oct. 8. Also closed Monday due to the Columbus Day holiday are Howe State Bank and the Post Office.

Homecoming Events Planned

The Howe Community is planning several special events for the Homecoming weekend, Oct. 22-23.

The events will begin with a bonfire and city-wide pep rally on Thursday, Oct. 21, at 7 p.m., at the high school gym, sponsored by the HHS Cheerleaders.

On Friday, Oct. 22, the Bulldogs will play Tom Bean at Bulldog Stadium, 7:30 p.m. Advance tickets are $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students. (At the gate tickets are $3.00 adults and $2.00 students). A reception will be held at the SNAP Center after the game.

Propane Tank Overturned Near Howe

A potentially dangerous situation occurred Wednesday, Sept. 29, when a propane trailer overturned on Hwy. 902 East, near the Bethel Baptist Church. A valve on the propane tank snapped and propane was leaking on the highway.

Propane is extremely dangerous and a propane fire can cause an explosion that will kill all people within one-half mile.

The Dept. of Public Safety received the call on the overturned trailer and called the Howe Volunteer Fire Dept. to cover the problem.

Volunteers Joe Fenton and Jack Floodas were the first ones on the scene. They were aided by several other volunteers who arrived later.

The trailer was in the west-bound lane of Hwy. 902. Floodas began directing traffic around the trailer and Fenton talked to the driver. Since the propane was leaking, Fenton decided it was best to leave the tank where it was until the propane had all drained out.

Fenton said he lost his temper when some citizens tried to move the tank and it was dragged several feet.

According to the Standard Fire Prevention Code, which was passed by the Howe City Council as an official guide for the fire dept., firemen have the authority of a police officer on the scene of a fire emergency.

Chapter 1, Section 1.04 says, "The Fire Official shall enforce the provisions of this Code and all state laws under his jurisdiction pertaining to the prevention, suppression or extinguishing of fires. The Fire Official shall have the powers of a police officer in performing his duties under this Code."

Fenton added that the Howe volunteers have been receiving training on the best ways to deal with fire emergencies. He wanted citizens to be aware of the authority of the firemen at fires (or potentially dangerous fire emergencies). The firemen may not always make the right or best decision on the scene due to pressures, etc., but their training should help them to make better decisions than untrained persons.

GCC Sets Dinner Theater

The Grayson County College Fine Arts Division will present a fall dinner theater Oct. 28 through Oct. 30 in the Silver Wings Building on the college's West Campus.

This fall's production will be a three-act comedy, "Saving Grace," by Jack Sharkey. A comedy of errors, the play revolves around a warmhearted private secretary who mistakes a telephone repairman for a burglar, tries to convert him from his life of crime and ends up having to pretend he's her husband. All this dismays her strait-laced sister's evangelist-fiancee.

Portraying Grace Larkin, the private secretary, will be April Anderson, Whitesboro sophomore. Her boss, Walter Chepple, will be played by Pete LaRoche, Pottsboro sophomore. Stan Hall, Denton sophomore, will portray Alex Docker, the telephone repairman. Shari Glenn, Collinsville freshman, is cast as Grace's older sister, Harriet Larkin, and Kelly Kolba, Denison sophomore, will play the traveling evangelist, Gregor Vanitzky.

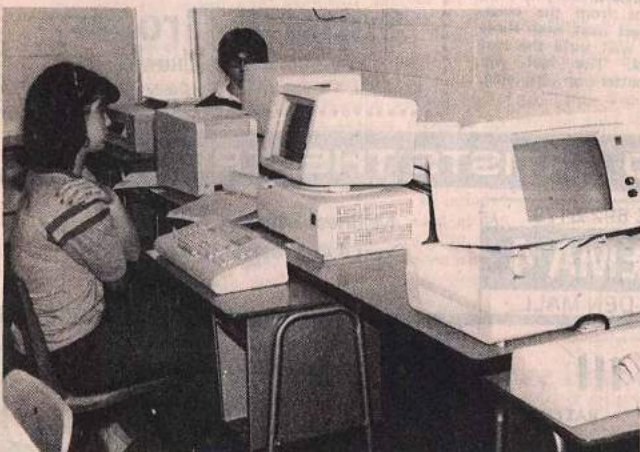

Nancy Humfeld, music-drama instructor at the college, will direct the production. Phillip Stephens, Howe sophomore, is in charge of the lighting. Mike Parker, Denison sophomore, is in charge of set design and construction and Lyle Huchton, Muenster freshman, is in charge of sound and sound effects.

Dinner caterer and cost will be announced at a later date. Dinner is scheduled for 7 p.m., with seating at 6:30 p.m. Curtain time is 8 p.m. all three nights.

For more information about the dinner theater, call Grayson County College, 465-6030.

Howe's That . . .

BATMAN is a favorite character of grandson Jordan (thanks to a daily cartoon show on Fox-33 and the Batman stunt show he saw at Six Flags this past summer). At the football game last Friday night, Jordan spotted Batman out on the field during the pre-game activities. He was dressed in black and wearing a cape - who else could it have been? (How about Howe Drum Major Kent Bearden???)

Jordan has turned two. His birthday party was last Saturday afternoon. He received several "choo-choo" train items and his cake had a "choo-choo" on it (as reported before, he REALLY likes trains).

Jordan had help opening the gifts. Christian (his newly acquired cousin - see last week's paper) helped him tear the paper off the presents. Those two little boys had almost as much fun tearing the paper off as playing with what was inside the gifts.

GRANDCHILDREN are delightful. Readers of this column know how I carry on about Jordan. Well, another local grandfather (Jim Ogle) shared this cute story with me on Monday about his three-year-old granddaughter. Seems her dad told her that he, her mom and she were going out to Lubbock to visit her Uncle Stephen and then he said, "And guess what, we're going to fly!" The youngster burst into tears and fled to her room. Dad followed and asked her what was wrong. "I haven't learned how (to fly) yet," she wailed.

From the past..

"Howe will be without passenger service on the southern Pacific railway for the first time in 63 years when the southbound passenger passes through at 5:40 Sunday afternoon. The services will be discontinued upon arrival of the train in Dallas."

This was the beginning of story that appeared in the Howe Messenger newspaper on Dec. 13, 1935.

The article continued, "The road was built in 1872, according to some of the older inhabitants of Howe, and has operated passenger trains continuously since the first. In days gone by the passenger service was as much, if not more, important as the freight. At one time eight passenger trains daily were operated and often one was unable to find a seat, it is said."

"The line has operated only two passengers daily for several years. The steam train was replaced by a diesel powered motor car and coach about two years ago.

"The suggestion has been made that a group meet at the station Sunday evening to see the last train go through.

"Almost simultaneously with the announcement that the passenger train would be discontinued came the notice that Southern Pacific trains would enter New Orleans for the first time over the New Orleans Mississippi River bridge on the morning of Dec. 17.

"Heretofore the trains have been using a barge transfer service, in which they were run out onto a ferry and transported across the river."

(Editor's note: I found this article while going through some old newspaper files recently. The railroad was important in the founding of Howe and I thought Howe's Shaun Rushing scored four TDs on three pass receptions from Larry McCarthy and one punt return. McCarthy and Jason Bridges scored on extra point attempts.

The defense did an excellent job of stopping Lone Oak and getting the ball to the offense. Once the offense got the ball, McCarthy, protected by excellent pass blocking, did an outstanding job of passing the ball. McCarthy also kicked and punted well all night keeping Lone Oak deep in their territory.

Dogs Begins District Play Friday After 14-6 Loss To Lone Oak

After a 14-6 loss Friday, Oct. 2 to the Lone Oak Buffalos, the Howe Bulldogs begin district play this week bringing with them a 1-4 record, but Head Coach Joey McQueen feels Howe is better than the record indicates.

"We're one of the better 1-4 teams in the area," he said. "In non-district we played some pretty tough teams we should have beaten. We feel like this should help us during district."

He added, "Our record doesn't show the effort that the young men have put into the games. We have played some fine teams. Those teams have a combined record of 16 wins and 9 losses."

Howe took the opening kickoff and moved the ball into Lone Oak territory before losing possession on downs at the Lone Oak 40. The Buffalos managed to get to the Howe 30, but Jeremy Francis intercepted a pass at the Howe 26. On Howe's first play of the series, quarterback Brian Freese completed a pass to Jay Carson at the Howe 45. Two plays later Freese kept the ball for a first down at the Lone Oak 44 and then completed a pass to Chad Norton to advance the play to the Buffalo 26 where the play was stalled when five plays later the ball went to the Buffalos on downs.

After four tries to get a first down, Lone Oak punted as the second quarter began. The Dogs advanced to the Lone Oak 6, but failed to score when a pass was incomplete on a 4 and 3.

Lone Oak could not move the ball on their possession and Howe again had a chance to score as they advanced to the Buffalo 28 and then fell short as the Lone Oak tackles sacked Freese for a loss. Lone Oak managed a couple of first downs on their last possession of the first half, but fumbled the ball away with two seconds left on the clock, and the first half ended scoreless.

Lone Oak returned to the ball field to take the third quarter kickoff. Two plays later they scored a TD on a 63-yard pass play. The PAT kick added to the score gave the Buffalos a 7-0 lead with 11:07 left in the third period.

Howe steadily moved the ball downfield on their possession, but lost the ball on a fumble at the Lone Oak 20. On the next play Lone Oak fumbled it back to Howe, but the Dogs' drive stalled as a couple of passes fell incomplete. The two teams traded possessions a couple of times and then as the fourth quarter began, Howe advanced the ball 71 yards using 8 plays to score a TD as Doug Ogle carried the ball the final 12 yards. The drive was highlighted by completed passes from Freese to Francis and Carson. The try for 2 points failed and with 8:38 left in the game, Howe trailed 7-6.

Lone Oak scored on their next possession using 8 plays to advance 63 yards with the TD coming on a 20-yard pass. The kick was good for a 14-6 score with 5:12 left on the clock.

Howe had one final possession late in the game, but the Dogs were stopped at the Lone Oak 40.

Freese completed 16 of 32 passes with 1 interception. Carson caught 4 for 58 yards; Norton caught 3 for 29; Darren Horrell caught 2 for 19; and Francis caught 6 for 46. Rushing was led by Ogle with 86 yards on 19 carries and Carson 28 on 13 carries.

McQueen said, "We start a new season this week with Celina, so keep up the great support."

Volunteer Program Helps Victimized Children

A new volunteer program that helps children who are victims of abuse, neglect or abandonment has begun in Fannin County and may soon be established in Grayson County as well.

Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) volunteers speak in court for these victimized children to help the judge decide what is best for each child.

These volunteers are appointed by judges after an extensive training program of about 25 hours. The CASA volunteer works alongside attorneys and social workers as an appointed officer of the court. Unlike attorneys and social workers, however, CASA volunteers speak exclusively for the child's best interest.

CASA volunteers handle only one or two cases at a time (whereas social workers have an average caseload of 46 cases). CASA workers can do an in-depth study of each child's case and submit a formal report to the court on what solution will be best for the child.

Persons interested in knowing more about the program, may contact Paula Spindle at (903) 583-2003 or write to her at Box 2134, Randolph, Texas 75475.

Howe's that ...

by Lana Rideout
Last week I told you about our car troubles. I think we have it fixed, and I want to offer a couple more "thank you" to folks who helped out with various ways. Our friend Marcy Cadenhead helped with getting the paper from the printer and to the various stories and post offices on Wednesday. Also thank you to Mary Claire Woodard at Howe High School. She provided photos to me of six new teachers at the high school. I have three teacher profiles on page three this week and will do the other three next week. The article on the new teachers was provided by teacher Caroline Hughes and student Cassie Henderson. Thanks to them. Also thanks to Caroline for last week's article about the new AP classes at HHS. It was very enlightening.

Seventeen years ago tomorrow night my first grandchild was born. Interestingly he was born about 8 pm while the Howe Bulldogs were in the middle of the Homecoming football game.

Tomorrow night, Oct. 5, will also be a Homecoming game. Some time between 8 and 9 pm, my grandson will be marching on the football field during halftime playing his trombone with that excellent Howe High School Band.

I have a total of seven grandchildren and I am very proud of all of them. Five of them attend HISD and two live a little too far away to be Howe Bulldogs. They live in Longview and 2 1/2 hours is a bit long for a commute.

A little over a week from tomorrow, my oldest granddaughter turns 15. And then in November another grandson turns 17. My, they are all growing up so fast!

State Sen. Estes visits Grayson County on his tour of 18 counties in District 30

Discusses issues of interest with local residents

by Lana Rideout

State Senator Craig Estes visited Grayson County Monday, Oct. 1, as part of his "District Dialogues" for all 18 counties in Senate District 30

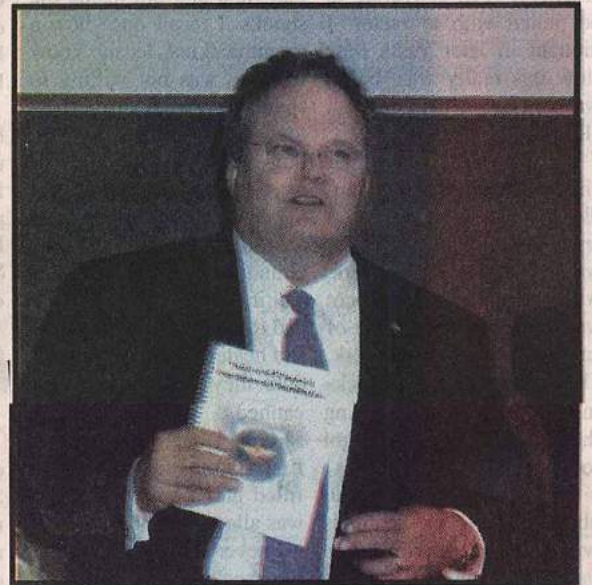

The purpose of these meetings is an opportunity to hear from constituents in direct conversations about important issues facing the district and state. Estes welcomed about 60 area residents to the Erma Blackburn Lecture Hall at the Grayson County College in Denison.

State Representative Larry Phillips also attended. Both men praised the other for their dedication to serving their districts as they work together "as a team".

Phillips serves District 62, which covers Grayson and Fannin Counties. In Senate District 30 Estes serves counties along the Red River from Grayson to Wilbarger and from Albany to Parker, north and west of the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex.

Comments from the audience included the need for more property tax relief. The legislature passed a measure limiting school districts to a $1.00 local tax rate.

However, an expansion of the franchise tax may have an adverse affect on some businesses. Estes noted that this area may need an adjustment. He added that the State Comptroller made the interpretation of the law as to how to administer it.

Another key issue is the affects of illegal immigration on our economy and resources. One man advocated that Texas look at laws recently passed by Oklahoma and adopt something similar.

Estes said that some illegal immigration issues were addressed, but about 90% of all proposed legislation (including some immigration issues) "went by the wayside." Much of it did not even come out of committee.

Estes said, "Border security is Number 1. After that we need tougher laws on those who hire illegal immigrants. Also social services (provided to illegals) is a vexing problem." Other issues mentioned included: voter ID, unresponsive appraisal districts, teen driving issues, eminent domain and private property, and property tax exemptions for charities whose charter prevents them from purchasing the property and getting the proper tax ID.

Estes, who announced his plans to seek another term, said, "My door is always open. There are many issues, but no quick fixes.... We need to keep the dialogue open."

Estes also urged voters to take the time to carefully study the 16 state amendments on the ballot for the Nov. 6 election and then go to the polls to vote.

He endorsed all 16 proposed state amendments, but asks citizens to make their own decisions based on careful study.

GCC Hosts Parent's Night

A free Parent's Night will be held at 7: pm Thursday, Oct. 11, at Grayson County College to familiarize families with the Dual Credit and Tech Prep opportunities for high school students. These two programs are available through GCC and offer high school students a chance to start building a college transcript before graduation.

A Dual Credit course is a college course taken by a high school student for which the student earns both college and high school credit at the same time. Some courses are taught at the high school campus during high school hours while others are taught at the college. Students taking Dual Credit courses pay college tuition and purchase books for the course(s).

"Students who begin taking Dual Credit courses in their junior year can earn 30 or more college credits by the time they graduate from high school if they also take summer classes at the college. Some students earn sophomore status even before they start college full time," said GCC Enrollment Advisor Charles Leslie.

Tech Prep is a combined effort between high schools and colleges that provides students with a smooth transition between high school and professional-technical career training. Students who take technical courses such as BCIS, criminal justice, welding, metal trades and many others can apply to have those high school experiences translated into college credit.

The Oct. 11 session will be held in the GCC Center for Workplace Learning Auditorium from 7-8 pm as part of the "Bound for College" series hosted monthly by GCC Counseling Services. Refreshments will be served and reservations are not required. For more information contact Leslie at 903-415-2532 or email leslic@grayson.edu.

Howe's That

This was the first week of the new position with the city as Director of Economic Development. Most people that I've talked to about the future growth headed this way from the metroplex just shake their heads and say something like, "yeah, they've been saying that for years, but Howe will never change."

I think there is a little faction to "the boy who cried wolf" syndrome in this community, but the cold-hard truth is that growth is coming to Howe whether we accept it or try and bury our heads in the sand like an ostrich in hopes of it passing by.

I, for one, have never been in favor of being mediocre at anything (and that includes a friendly game of Words with Friends with my wife). I don't want to feel inferior to neighboring communities and I definitely do not want to hear that giant crushing sound of being sandwiched between an old large community and a new large community.

Howe is not ready to be a 2015 GMC Acadia Denali. But I do see our council aggressively trying to trade in the 2001 Ford F-150.

Circus nets Keep Howe Beautiful over $1,150

Performer on The Wheel of Destiny

Citizens packed two shows on Tuesday night

Back in March, the idea was brought up to the Keep Howe Beautiful board members by Executive Director Laura Duree of bring a big top circus to our very own city as a fundraiser for the organization and a community bonding mechanism. As witnessed last Tuesday, both of those ideas came together in one giant success of a circus in Howe's very own Jones Park.

Keep Howe Beautiful, which was founded last fall, had it's largest fundraising event to date with the circus by netting a total of $1,150. The organization will meet to discuss what beautification projects they will use that money towards. The Culpepper & Merriweather performance was top-notch with everything one would expect to see and more from a continued on Page #2

Early morning effects of lightning in Dorchester

Just after 7:15 a.m. this morning, an oil tank was struck by lightning. Within a matter of minutes, it was engulfed in flames.

Howe Fire Chief Robert Maniet said that Howe along with Whiteboro, Gunter, Collinsville Fire Departments are working together on it. The Grayson County Fire Marshall along with the North Texas Regional Airport were the first line of defense on the sight.

Due to the rain, getting to the fire in the mud served as a problem also.

"We're trying to keep our distance right now until cools down for us to get up there and get it taken care of," said Maniet.
